G.W.V.A. DANCE GREAT SUCCESS

A very merry crowd attended the first dance given by the Mirror branch of the Great War Veteran's Association in the Mirror theatre last Friday evening. It was one of the largest crowds that has ever tripped the light fantastic in the new hall besides being one of the most enjoyable dances of the season. Parties were present from Stettler, Bashaw, Alix, Tees and Erskine, in addition to the many from Mirror and surrounding district.

The hall was appropriately decorated with the flags of the allies, giving a pleasing appearance to the interior. The floor was in excellent condition. Music was billed to be supplied by a Veteran's orchestra, but owing to several other attractions on that night, the music committee were unable to carry out this part of the program, and the Mirror orchestra came to the rescue and furnished fine music.

A booth was conducted by Mesdames Oldring, Webster and Common, the cakes, candy, etc., being donated by the ladies of Mirror and vicinity. This part of the proceedings will give the Veteran's about $55.00 clear, while the surplus from the dance, after all expenses are paid, will be in the neighborhood of $140.00. Owing to the large quantity of cakes supplied it was necessary for Pres. Tinker to assume the role of auctioneer, and the eatables were sold at good prices. Sec. Merkley acted as floor-manager and kept the dances going in good shape, one very noticeable feature being the many old-time dances.

The next dance to be given by the G. W. V. A., will be on New Year's Eve, and if the last one is any criterion, should be another record breaker. Keep the date in mind.

For Information

In writing the editor of The Journal from Spirit River, Alta., regarding the placing of her son's name on the memorial to be placed in St. Monica's church, Mirror, Mrs. L. L. Cassidy says in part:

"It is a comforting thought that so many of our churches have these memorials; it shows appreciation of what our boys have done and seems to ensure their not being forgotten. I have been wondering if any of the Mirror men who have returned know any particulars regarding the taking of Hall, on Aug. 10th, 1918. Murray was with an attacking party of men from the 50th Bn. They had fought ahead of the main line till they came to where the enemy had machine guns that just swept the place with fire. I would appreciate very much any fuller particulars."

Electricity Vs. Steam

Test of Strength Between Two Powerful Steam Locomotives and an Electric

When 150 prominent railway men and engineers from many parts of the United States and Canada gathered at Erie, Pennsylvania, a few days ago, to witness trial tests of a new type of gearless, electric passenger locomotive, they believed, most of them at any rate, that the electric locomotive would be of quite a perfunctory nature. Instead, they saw what F. J. Sprague, noted consulting engineer and known as the father of railway electrification, described as "the most magnificent exhibition of electricity applied to railroads that the country has ever seen."

"Indeed," added Mr. Sprague, during a dinner which followed, "I think the thing has never been duplicated in this, or any other country."

The feature of the exhibit, sprung at the last moment, was probably unique in the annals of electrification, for it was a test of brute strength between two powerful steam locomotives and the new electric locomotive, less than a tug of war between three monsters of iron and steel to a stand-up finish. Two modern steam engines—the kind the New York Central uses to haul its limited trains—were switched to the spot of track and coupled across the rails. The electric locomotive standing in readiness for the test to begin. If the two contestants had hauled in opposite directions there might have been danger of pulling out the draw bars and a resultant accident. This possibility was avoided by having the two engines pull against each other in different directions.

At a given signal from the supervisor of tests, the steam engines got under way and began slowing the electric ahead of them along a short piece of straight-away.

The current was gradually turned on the electric while the engineers of both steam locomotives opened up their throttles to the full.

What was the surprise of the crowd to see the steam engines slowly but surely lose momentum and finally come to a complete stop still with their throttles wide, puffing and chugging as under an extraordinary strain. Then what appeared to be the impossible happened, and a great cheer went up from the crowd as they saw the steam engines forced backward, first only by inches, but gradually as the full power of the electric was brought into play the pressure became almost a rout, and when the test ended a few minutes later the steam locomotives were moving steadily backward and the electric locomotive was declared the victor.

Highly second in interest to the break in the progress of the exhibition of the regenerative powers of the electric locomotive which preceded it. The locomotive, which is one of five being constructed for operation on a new electrified branch of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, hauls over a mountainous distance and drifts frequently coast down steep grades.

While doing so the engineers have so designed the engine that the locomotive, which is one of five being constructed for operation on a new electrified branch of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, hauls over a mountainous distance and drifts frequently coast down steep grades.

The centre cab is occupied by an oil fired steam boiler for heating the passenger trains, with accessories including tanks for oil and water circulating pumps and a motor driven pump for furnishing force oil draft.

Officials of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul General Electric Company, Canadian National Railway, Canadian Pacific and Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario attended the tests. The following Canadians were present: Mr. Gordon, General Electric Company; S. B. Clement, chief engineer, Transcontinental and Northern Ontario Railway; J. Murphy, Department of Railways and Canals; J. G. Baskin, M. E. Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario; C. Price, electrical superintendent of Canadian National Railway; L. B. Walker, electrical engineer, Canadian National Railway; W. G. Hewson, E. Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Airplane for South Pole John L. Cope to Have Special Type of Machine Made for Him

Long Journey

John L. Cope, leader and organizer of the British Imperial Antarctic Expedition, stated with regard to his projected flight that he was not merely going to fly to the pole, but intended to use the airplane throughout the six or seven years that he would be in the air.

Of course, added Mr. Cope, the machine itself would have to be of a very special type—capable of carrying four men and provisions for at least one month.

Since weight is of great value, what was more important was climbing ability. The experts were convinced that they could design a plane which would accomplish the task. One of the functions of the pilot would be to act as the eyes of the ship once it was in the ice. Like Commander Shackleton, he was convinced that an airman flying ahead of the ship and in the air would be able to point out ice-free channels through which the ship could be navigated.

"Among the personnel of the expedition is Mr. Ernest Joyce, who accompanied the first Scott expedition to Antarctica. He was master of both Shackleton expeditions. Mr. Joyce is now on his way to England from Sydney, and is to serve as second in command to Mr. Cope."

The Bootblack's Reflections

When the War Was on They Were Something Like Boots

The London bootblack did a roaring trade during the war. But things are not quite so brisk now. The Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders are no more wanting shoes than at any time of the night or day. And so the bootblack stands patiently by his box and brushes hope for customers. He is quite willing to converse with the soldier who has the time to listen to him, though street corners by the big railway stations—Charing Cross, Victoria—are long bustling for real consolation. But while diving for pennies to pay for getting your shoes cleaned, there is time to hear the bootblack's remarks on the falling-out not so much of his own prospects (he is a cheerful soul), but of boot leather. Hardly worth cleaning now, the boots are the war lasted—but now! Yes, it was a good war for the London bootblack, good wishes to him for the future—Christian Science Industry.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 30

JESUS TEACHES PETER TRUE GREATNESS

I. Christ's Amazing Love for His Disciples (v. 1-3).

Jesus was fully conscious of what was upon him. He knew that the cross with all its anguish was just before him. He knew that his disciples would shamefully forsake him in a few hours. He knew that one of his number would be the instrument in the hands of the devil in his betrayal. He knew that all things were in his hands; he was fully conscious of his duty. Notwithstanding all this, he displayed patient and unflinching love. He did not withdraw his love from them because of their weakness and the shameful failure which he knew would soon be made manifest.

II. Christ Washing His Disciples' Feet (v. 4-11).

This act is symbolic of his amazing love for his disciples. Jesus did not regard himself as too good to do this menial service. The true Christian does not allow his rank in society to keep him from acts of love service.

1. Steps in this service: (1) He rose from supper; (2) he laid aside his garments; (3) he took a towel and girded himself; (4) he poured water into a basin; (5) washed his disciples' feet; (6) wiped them with a towel; (7) he laid aside the towel and took the basin to wash the feet of the others.

2. Peter's impetuous request that he go from one extreme to another. He was his failure to understand the significance of the service. He caused him to behave so strangely.

3. The significance of this service to those who participate in it. (1) It is a spiritual cleansing of the heart. (2) It is a spiritual cleansing of the heart. (3) It is a spiritual cleansing of the heart.

Plenty of Yellow Sugar Available

Trade Commission Says People Ought to Be Content With Brand

On account of complaints regarding the sugar shortage, the Canadian Trade Commission telegraphed to nine representative boards of trade and wholesale grocers' associations of Canada, stating that yellow sugar was available for immediate delivery.

The replies have shown no evidence of a sugar famine, but some objection was made to the proportion of yellow sugar offered. It would appear that the problem is one of living rather than high cost of living.

The Canadian trade commissioners are convinced that the clamor for more sugar is due largely to people insisting on getting all white sugar to the practical exclusion of yellow.

Smelter Company Contemplates Installing a New Concentrator at Rosland, B.C.

A report from Victoria says that the Consolidated Mining and Smelter Company contemplates installing a new concentrator at Rosland, British Columbia, which will cover an area of about an acre and involve an outlay of at least $100,000. The building probably will be of steel, with steel and concrete floors. The capacity of the mill will be 1,500 tons a day. It will be designed to treat the ores of the Rosland camp by a process that has been tested for some months at the test concentrator at Trail, British Columbia. The question of the site of the mill is said to be unsettled, but Rosland will probably be the first choice.

A Happy Family

BY DR. C. B. BOWEN

A happy family is one that sits down to the table with keen appetites and good cheer. Plenty of out-of-doors and cleanliness inside and outside of the body, will make for health, wealth and happiness. Your doctor will tell you that anything from headache to the most serious illness may result from allowing food to ferment in the intestines. The first thing to do in case you feel peevish, loopy, dull, perhaps feverish, is to flush the liver and kidneys, drink plenty of water, and take a dose of castor oil, or, something better, made of Mays-apple, alone and later, and long sold by almost every druggist as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. This may save you from a fit of sickness, remove the poisons from the system and give the tissues of the body a chance to build up and resist disease.

People are realizing more and more that the kidneys, just as do the bowels, need to be flushed occasionally. The kidneys are an eliminative organ and are constantly working, separating the poisons from the blood. Uric acid backs up into the system, causing rheumatism, neuralgia, dropsy and many other serious disturbances.

This can be avoided by stimulating the kidneys to increased action, and because of its tonic effect on these organs I would advise any one to get Anuric (anti-uric-acid) which is to be had nowadays for fifty cents, at almost any drug store.

Room in Elevator For More Grain

A report has been circulated through the surrounding district to the effect that the Security Elevator at Mirror is unable to take any more grain at present. We are informed by Mgr. Tinker that such is not the case, and that he is prepared to handle all the grain the farmers can haul in to the elevator. While it may be a fact that some of the elevators in the neighboring towns cannot take any more grain, Mirror has been rather fortunate in that a large number of cars of coal have been unloaded here, and which are then available for the shipment of grain.

"The Great Gamble"

First Episode

Roger Morton, well-to-do mine owner, and his wife Catherine are the parents of twin girls, Aline and Eleanor, afterwards known as Nell. Catherine, the wife, is infatuated with Richard Blake, a criminal. His line of work is opening safes without explosives.

Influenced by a certain fascination for Mrs. Morton, and the prospects of later getting money out of the husband, Blake persuades Mrs. Morton to elope with him. Just as Catherine has agreed, her husband enters and orders Blake from the house.

The next day, Mrs. Morton elopes with Blake taking with her one of the twins, Eleanor.

Blake, Catherine and the child board a river steamer. That evening fire breaks out on the steamer—Catherine gives the child to Blake, who jumps overboard with it. Then Catherine jumps but is drowned. Blake reaches the shore safely, carrying the child. The next day, Morton reads in the newspaper of the burning of the steamer, and in the passenger list, he sees the name of his wife and child, and believes that both have been lost.

Eighteen years later Mr. Morton, now very wealthy, is living in a beautiful home in New York, and his daughter Aline has grown up into charming young woman. Eleanor, known as Nell, has grown up as protegee of Blake, and is associated with criminals; she has been taught by Blake that it is right to get whatever you can by any means possible. Blake, still unworried by the polished gentlemen, is established in a fine apartment opposite Nell's. He has two associates, Cooley, who secures entrance to fine homes by posing as a butler, and "The Rat," a young, but daring criminal. Blake following a clue given by Cooley, enters the Morton home, and opens the safe. He is astonished to learn from a copy of Morton's will in the safe, that he is in Morton's house, and that his Morton's property is to go to his "only daughter Aline." Aline and her father return from the opera. Blake from his hiding place sees Aline, recognizes the perfect resemblance to Nell, and a great idea comes to him.

Blake tells Cooley and Shorty his plans. Aline is a beautiful, apparently for ransom. They will take small ransom, but intend of returning Aline to her father, they will return Nell. To account for her inability to remember her father and details of her home and friends, Nell will pretend that the excitement of her abduction has brought about amnesia or a loss of memory. Then the father will probably die soon—"Nell inherits the property and we divvy."

Nell is introduced, about to work the badger game on a certain Mr. Robinson, who hopes to enjoy the first great romantic thrill of his married life. Robinson has planned to elope with Nell, a sweet, innocent, lonesome, neglected little woman. Blake enters, poses as her ruined husband and Robinson gives up $5000.00 to avoid being shot.

Ralph Darrell, the hero of the story, is successful young business man. He is introduced in a series of thrilling scenes, chasing and capturing Shorty, "The Rat," who has done a little story robbery.

bery. A very thrilling fight in a saloon follows, and Ralph recovers "The Rat's" foot.

Ralph sees Aline enter her home and is very much impressed. When Robinson, accompanied by two detectives, comes to Nell's place, Blake is arrested, but Cooley and Shorty rescue him. In their flight, Nell and Blake take refuge in the vestibule of Ralph Darrell's home, where faking unconsciousness, she is found by Ralph and taken to his apartment.

Harding, an old college chum of Ralph's, visits Ralph and leaves a package of bonds in Ralph's safe. Nell sees this, and signals to Blake, who is watching outside. Then Ralph takes Nell to the Morton house thinking she is Aline, whom he saw enter the house that morning. After Ralph leaves, Nell runs out of the Morton vestibule and escapes.

Meanwhile, Blake has entered Ralph's apartment and has taken on Harding's bonds from the safe. Harding discovers Blake and fights him. Blake stabs Harding and escapes. Ralph enters, finds his friend dying and is discovered by the valet holding the knife in one hand and supporting Harding with the other. The valet calls the police, and tells them what he saw.

Harding dies, and Ralph is accused of his murder. A detective takes him to the Morton house on the strength of Ralph's belief that he can prove a positive alibi. When confronted by Aline, Ralph pleads with her, "For God's sake tell the truth—my life depends on it." Aline says, "I never saw this man before."

"The Great Gamble" will be shown at the Mirror Theatre, on Saturday evening, Nov. 20th.

A NOTE IN SCHOOL.

Did You Ever, on the City, Either Bill

One or Another One? Did you ever get a note in school? From a boy? From a girl? I suppose there are other circumstances in life that are comparable to this, but certainly there is nothing else at this time which contains the same elements—dramatic, embarrassing, grateful, triumphant, delicious, cruel. Not that there was anything in such a note—the outside, as the mischievous name to view, was much more thrilling than the contents. But the very sight of it—penciled on a piece of blank paper, and ragged edged and rumpled as it was—floated across an intervening space or offered itself to be duplicated in any later page. The contents, I regret to say, were insignificant, negligible. It is to be hoped that the big boy learned more about the art in time. But the mere fact of getting such a note, of having it written to yourself, of forecasting the contents, of having the other girls see you get it, all this in addition to the exciting fact that the teacher might see—once a male a girl sent a note out—filled the moment with peculiar emotion—Margaret Lynn in Atlantic Monthly.

A FAMOUS REPLY.

The Critical Comment Made by Sweden's Greatest Chancellor.

The career of Axel Oxenstierna is a proud chapter in the history of Sweden. In 1611 Oxenstierna became the chancellor of the Swedish empire, under Gustavus Adolphus, and much of the glory that befell the reign of that remarkable monarch was due to "the masterly diplomatic ability, great courage, resource and moderation" of his prime minister.

For in the days of Oxenstierna Sweden was one of the "powers" of Europe, and the Swedish dominion for a time extended over Prussian territory. During the entire period of the Thirty Years' war in Europe, Sweden, through the instrumentality of her "mighty man in peace," maintained an enviable place in the council of nations.

And when in 1632 negotiations for a general continental agreement began at Osnabruck the Swedish chancellor appointed his own son, Johan, as the Swedish representative. The son expressed his distrust of his ability to properly serve his country so he resigned a capacity. To this natural diffidence of youth the father made his famous reply:

"That does not know, my son, with how little wisdom the world is governed."

"There goes a man I might have married."

"Another guy who is wiser than I, I suppose."—Detroit Free Press.

HELD BY A COBRA.

Agency of a Prisoner in a Military Jail

In the military custodians of India the punishment cells, which are about fourteen feet high by twelve feet square, stand separately. There are no windows, but one side is a grille, the iron bars being about five inches apart. On one occasion when a private was confined in one of them a large cobra, one of the most deadly reptiles in India, crawled between the bars and wriggled on to the bed to get warm. It curled upon the prisoner's chest, and he was just about to smother it when he felt the animal wriggle, he saw the snake's glittering eyes staring into his face. He dared not move, so he had to lie in that position for four hours.

At 6 o'clock, when the sergeant went his rounds, he saw the position the prisoner was in and went for a flog stick. With another soldier he entered the cell, and they drove the snake into a corner, where they killed it. The colonel released the prisoner, as he thought he had suffered enough punishment in the terrible experience he had gone through. The man's hair had turned white with the mental strain which he had endured—London Standard.

The Governor's Dog.

A certain ex-governor of a certain state was extravagantly fond of his dogs. One day he saw his youngest son kick a favorite bulldog puppy.

"You gammy young cove!" roared the father. "How dare you kick my dog? I'll teach you to behave yourself better, sir!"

When the offender was soundly thrashed the father wiped the perspiration from his forehead.

"I wish this be a lesson to you," he said, "how to treat my dogs. And, now that I think of it, you're being disrespectful to your mother at late, sir!"—New York Post.

On the Left Lap.

"Saw an odd race yesterday."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, it was between two dogs—a fox terrier and a dachshund."

Well!

"Two saucers of milk were placed in front of them and the object was to see which could lick up his first."

"Which won the race?"

"The dachshund won in the last lap."—Florida Times-Union.

Well Spoken.

A DREAM AND A LETTER.

Maybe Merely a Coincidence, Maybe a

The following story of a dream was sent to a correspondent by an acquaintance who is about as stout and unimaginative a man as one could meet. He had a friend of whom he had just heard who had committed suicide and one night, soon after he had done so, he had a vision of a street after dark when the light of the moon shone on the lawn and suggested him to follow it. He did so, and it led him to a house, the door of which was open, and then up some stairs to a room where there was a table on which lay a number of books, all of which were lying open.

The dream man had a great reader and therefore there was nothing unusual in the spectacle of a great many books in his room. The book turned to the unimaginative man and begged him to turn over a page of each book so that it might continue to read. He did so, and he remembers that there were some books which he turned over two pages in minutes. When all the pages were turned the book appeared to be happy.

The dreamer awoke the next wife and when he went down to his breakfast he found a letter lying on the table bearing the postmark of a town which he knew very well, but other than his name. He had never been to that town, nor so far as he was aware had he ever known any friends or relatives in the town. The only relative of the dream man whom he had any knowledge lived in another city.

When he opened the envelope he found inside it a small photograph of the dead man, showing his mustache, here and there a little faded, but it was anything to denote by whom it had been sent, and to this day he does not know from whom he received it. —Manchester Guardian.

ONE OF IRVING'S POSES.

His Role of Defeated Candidate in Labourne's Borough.

An amusing episode of the Middlesex elections of 1885 was the error that the candidate for the Labourers made in taking Henry Irving for their defeated candidate. The story is told by Mr. Henry Labouchere in his "Life of Henry Labouchere," as Mr. Labouchere himself narrated it:

"I was the defeated candidate for Middlesex. Those were the days of mud-slinging and electioneering, and it was the habit for each candidate to go down to Brentford in a carriage and four to thank his supporters. On morning of the election I had to perform this function, Irving called upon me, and he carried me to return to London.

"In a large constituency like Middlesex few know the candidates by sight. Irving felt it his duty to assume an attitude of importance. He followed me, pressed his hat over his brows and was every inch the huffed politician—defeated, and yet always reluctant to be so. In this character he was so impressive that the crowd came to the conclusion that he was the defeated candidate.

"So wrong and so solemnly dignified did he look that they were overcome with emotion, and to show their sympathy they took the horses out of the carriage and dragged it to the door. When they left us I got up to thank them, but this did not get the situation. They felt I must thank them as they looked at Irving. His feelings are too much for him and they pulled him on the back, showing hands with him and thanked him."

U.S. Senate's Action Puzzle to Britain

London.—Nearly all British public men are silent concerning the United States senate's dealings with the peace treaty. The reason for this is that they understand United States citizens regard the question as United States domestic political affair and fear that any expression from them might give offence, and be taken as interference to influence United States politics.

Lord Robert Cecil and Lieut.-Gen. Jan Christian Smuts were the British sponsors for the League of Nations and are largely responsible for the details thereof, and both have registered their disappointment at the latest turn of events. Gen. Smuts in his appeal to the United States and Lord Robert Cecil in a brief speech in the House of Commons.

Lord Robert stands on that speech and refers all questioners to it, at which he has to say on the subject for the present.

It would be impossible to try to summarize public opinion. The first view reflected by the newspapers is that the United States had gone back on her agreement. Later advice from Washington, however, softened this feeling.

United States affairs generally, the relations between the senate and the President, the rule regarding the two-thirds majority and how a concurrent resolution might bring peace with Germany, are puzzling to the average man.

Sir Henry Drayton Thanks Workers

Gratification at Success of the Victory Loan and Appreciation of Patriotic Service Rendered.

Ottawa.—In a statement made to the Canadian Press, Sir Henry Drayton, Gt. Master of Finance, expressed his gratification at the success of the Victory Loan and his appreciation of the enthusiastic and patriotic service rendered by those workers in the loan drive.

He suggests that subscribers everywhere will help to confirm the credit of Canada by holding the bonds which they have purchased.

Outbreaks in Fu Chow

Several Chinese Students Killed and Three Wounded.

Amoy, China.—There have been serious boycott outbreaks in Fu Chow. Several Chinese students have been killed and three wounded by Japanese subjects.

All the schools and markets have been closed.

The situation throughout Fukien is serious.

Johnson's Condition Is Improved. London.—The condition of William Johnson, the American anti-saloon organizer, is greatly improved. Johnson suffered a severe attack of the eye recently in an attack on him by medical students and others during the course of a debate on prohibition, in which he was suggested.

Explain Delay in Wheat Shipments

Winnipeg.—Following the announcement of Jas. Stewart, chairman of the Wheat Export Board, that failure to move western wheat to normal volume was due to failure of the railways to supply cars, the administrative sub-committee of the Canadian Railway Association has issued this statement.

"Referring to the statement made to the press by James Stewart, chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, respecting the movement of wheat to the head of the lake, in arriving at his conclusion and in comparing this year's movement with the record one of 1915, Mr. Stewart has conveniently overlooked a number of important factors.

"First.—That while the crop matured earlier than usual this year, threshing was delayed over a large portion of the West and marketing was unusually light until freeze-up came.

"Second.—That winter struck the prairies at least a month earlier than usual, with the inevitable result that the season was shortened.

"Third.—That as a result of the prolonged western coal strike the railways were called on to move more commercial coal during the present

U.S. Will Not Attend Labor Meeting

Canadian Labor Delegates Say That It Should Make No Difference

Washington.—Rejection of the peace treaty by the United States was widely discussed among delegates to the international labor conference. There is general regret that the United States will not, as a result of the senate's action, be a signatory of conventions adopted by the conference. At the same time there is a general feeling that the labor branch of the League of Nations should go ahead with its work irrespective of what the United States may do.

Canadian employers have already expressed the view that Canada should not assent to labor conditions to which the United States is not prepared to assent.

Canadian labor takes an entirely contrary view. Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress, holds that steps taken by the United States have indicated the adoption of progressive legislation by Canada, "even though the United States decides for the time being not to become a member of the League of Nations."

Tom Moore said: "I am of the opinion that the United States will eventually be forced by economic conditions to adopt progressive measures similar in the provisions to those decided upon by the labor conference."

Australia Suffers From Severe Drought

Stock and Crops Have Been Destroyed and Thousands of Settlers Ruined.

London.—Australia, especially New South Wales, is suffering the most devastating drought since white men have resided in that country, even the drought of 1902 being surpassed, according to a Sydney dispatch to the Daily Mail.

Stocks and crops have been destroyed, and it is doubtful whether there will be enough seed wheat for next season's sowing. Hundreds of sheep and perhaps thousands of settlers have been ruined. Northwestern New South Wales is described as a desert, being stripped of everything green, being stripped of everything green, being stripped of everything green.

Padlocks are littered with the skeletons of cattle, and even rabbits are dying in vast numbers.

All the schools and markets have been closed.

The situation throughout Fukien is serious.

Johnson's Condition Is Improved. London.—The condition of William Johnson, the American anti-saloon organizer, is greatly improved. Johnson suffered a severe attack of the eye recently in an attack on him by medical students and others during the course of a debate on prohibition, in which he was suggested.

To Investigate Shipbuilding Victoria

For the purpose of slating up the shipbuilding situation in the United Kingdom and possibly to place an order with one of the Old Country firms for the construction of a new steamer ship for the British Columbia coastwise passenger trade, Capt. J. W. Trueman, manager of the British Columbia steamship service, after conferring with the company officials in Montreal, will take passage to England.

"Fifth.—That the early advent of winter, coupled with a shortage of feed, threw on the railways the burden of handling, during the months of October and November, at least three times the number of head of livestock which would normally move at this period of the year.

"Sixth.—That the railroads controlled by the American railroad administration had failed to return thousands of cars belonging to Canadian railways, which are now south of the line. After allowing for the American cars which are in Canada, the balance stands 22,421 cars in excess of the United States needs.

"Seventh.—That in dealing in figures respecting the movement of wheat only Mr. Stewart overlooked the fact that the railway had been called on this year to handle a larger proportion of cars of grain than in former years."

Great Britain Removes Whiskey Restrictions

Release of 115,000,000 Gallons Announced in House of Commons

London.—One hundred and fifteen million gallons of whiskey, besides other quantities of spirits in hand in Great Britain, were released from revenue restrictions, and may be distributed to all-owners who can persuade the dealers to sell.

The announcement of the removal of the restrictions, which was made without warning, in the House of Commons by the Food Controller, came as a surprise to the members, who greeted it with loud cheers.

The liquor trade was equally surprised and was besieged by the well-to-do among the public as soon as the unexpected news spread. Many orders of from fifty to a hundred dozen were placed immediately, in addition to numerous consignments of smaller quantities. Although it is figured that enough spirits has been thus freed to supply every man, woman and child in the country with thirty-six bottles apiece, it is doubtful if the public will find it easy at present to increase consumption to a great extent. The government maintains control of the maximum price, which for whiskey is ten shillings and sixpence per bottle, and it is not believed that the dealers will sell much below that figure, as the existing high price will remain.

Moreover, restrictions on distillation during the war and the necessity of maturing stocks may lead the dealers to hold large quantities. On the other hand, it will be possible to sell all the American whiskey which has reached and is still reaching England, though clearance from the customs may be slow.

Germany's defensive strength, said Field Marshal von Hindenburg, declared before the sub-committee of the national assembly investigating war responsibilities.

"I am in full agreement with the view that neither the people, the Kaiser, nor the government desired war, for the government knew better than the Kaiser's tremendous difficulty position in a war against the entente."

"If the military authorities prepared for the possibility of an unfavorable war," continued von Hindenburg, "that was only their duty towards the nation. If there had been total co-operation between the army and homeland, we could have attained victory."

"While with the enemy, notwithstanding his superior armament, we were united everywhere firmly in the determination to be victorious, with us, although we were unmercifully inferior, interests at home made their influence felt and this state of affairs led to the breaking of the will to resist."

In all great decisions, Ludendorff and himself were of one mind, and had worked in full accord from August 29, 1916, to the end.

"We considered unrestricted submarine warfare imperative immediately, and we entered the supreme conflict," said the field marshal.

"When 1917 came we could not longer permit our gallant soldiers to be lashed with American ammunition and their wives and children starved by the blockade. The decision was the only means to oppose these conditions."

Unwritten Law Played Prominent Part in Defense. Saskatchewan, Sask.—John Bronck, charged with the murder of Arnold Galt, a retired soldier, at Radisson, Sask., last October, was acquitted by a jury at Battleford. The unwritten law played an important part in the defense.

New Contract Signed by Railwaymen

Is Practically the Same as Obtains on U.S. Roads

Winnipeg.—The general committee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the order of railway conductors have signed a new agreement with the C.P.R., which carries an increase in wages for most of the men in train and yard service and makes a few changes in the rules governing working conditions of yard men, switch tenders now being included in the employees regulated for.

The contract signed is virtually the same as obtains on United States roads, but the greater portion of the increase in wages has been paid by the company since last summer, the men having had an interim agreement to that effect.

To Put Treaty In Force at Once

Quebec Will Discuss Prohibition

Only Two Important Measures Are Down for Hearing This Session

Quebec.—At the Quebec legislature, which opens December 10, only two really important measures are so far on the order book. The appropriation of five million dollars for colonization, and the revision of the code regarding legislation for large corporations.

It is expected, however, that there will be a debate and possibly a proposition amendment on prohibition, but it is anticipated that the present regulation regarding the liquor tariff will remain in force at least a couple of years yet.

Germany's defensive strength, said Field Marshal von Hindenburg, declared before the sub-committee of the national assembly investigating war responsibilities.

Paris.—The adjournment of the United States senate for the session without ratifying the peace treaty created much surprise in peace conference circles. The members of the council after adjournment withheld comment on the situation. In French circles, however, it was seen that there was disappointment over the senate's adjournment with the treaty situation still unsettled, no surprise was expressed, and it even seemed that the event had been expected. Apparently the situation had been discussed and measures taken in advance to meet the emergency, as Foreign Minister Pichon, who presided over the Supreme Council at a recent session, urged that the Versailles treaty be put into force not later than December 1.

M. Pichon's view seems to have prevailed, the council expressing the opinion that it would be desirable to put the treaty into effect on December 1. In this connection it may be noted that the French Foreign Office was not aware of the probability that the American senate would not meet again before the first week in December.

Hardwick having been found stunned, wearing the wolf's head is about to be lynched by the infuriated cowboys who believe that he is the real Terror of the Range, but Thelma comes up and when arguments fail, rescues Hardwick at the point of a gun.
Just at this instant the soldiers come up and take charge of Hardwick. They return with him to the fort where after a consultation it is thought best that Hardwick continue his investigations at the ranch. So the Colonel gives him a letter stating that he was not the deserter they were looking for, and asking that he be reinstated at the ranch. Meantime things are happening at the ranch.

Tough Mackenzie has insisted that Thelma marry him and by threatening to expose Martin's past, forces the ranch owner to consent to the marriage. Martin insists that Thelma marry Tough Mackenzie and she is distrasted at first but finally allows the wedding arrangements to be made since she has received a mysterious note signed "A Friend," which tells her not to worry that all will be well.
Then comes the night of the wedding with all the ranch cowboys and neighboring ranchers present. Just as the ceremony is about to be performed, . . .

The "Terror of the Range" will be shown at the Mirror

Fined For Neglecting Income Tax Returns from the following, taken from the Red Deer Advocate: - Mr.

Elliott, of Ottawa, appeared before Mr. Jos. Wallace, J.P., on Wednesday afternoon at Red Deer to prosecute a charge against W. A. Moore, of not furnishing an income tax return for 1917 for purposes of Dominion taxation. Mr.
Moore's defense was that his own income was so mixed up with that of the Western General Electric Co., that it had been almost impossible for him to make the return required.
Mr. Elliott's case was that the Western General had made a return for 1917, and that Mr.
Moore had been twice notified by registered letter in June and August, 1919, to make the neglected return. Mr. Moore showed that he had been absent

The early winter adds another burden to the farmer in the hunting up of stray stock, and a suggestion in the Coronation Review might be of service in our own district, and that is, that farmers take up and clip all strays and notify the owner if known, and if not, advertise them immediately. If every stock owner in the district will do this he will benefit himself and the whole community. Feed is not going to be plentiful and you should not have to feed some one else's cattle but to drive them away would mean that a great many would starve.—Bashaw Star.
